

THE GOOD LIFE METHOD

Reasoning Through the Big Questions of Happiness, Faith and Meaning

Wednesday, March 16, 2022

12:30 pm - 1:45 pm

Oak Room at South Dining Hall
open to the ND community | lunch available at noon

Meghan Sullivan

Professor of Philosophy
University of Notre Dame

Meghan Sullivan is the Wilsey Family Collegiate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Notre Dame and serves as Director of the Notre Dame Institute for Advanced Study. Professor Sullivan's research tends to focus on philosophical problems concerning time, modality, rational planning, value theory, and religious belief (and sometimes all five at once). She is deeply interested in the ways philosophy contributes to the good life and the best methods for promoting philosophical thought.

Paul Blaschko

Assistant Teaching Professor of Philosophy
University of Notre Dame

Paul Blaschko is an Assistant Teaching Professor in the Philosophy Department at the University of Notre Dame. He is a philosopher and his primary areas of interest are epistemology and action theory. His research focuses on the nature and normative dimensions of deliberative belief formation, but he's also interested in theories of practical reason and value, the philosophy of religion, and medieval philosophy.

constudies.nd.edu