

Work in Progress: A Conversation and Reading with Rev. James Martin, S.J.

September 2, 2026

7:00 p.m.

DeBartolo Performing Arts Center,
Patricia George Decio Theater

Members of the tri-campus community are invited to attend a conversation and book reading with New York Times best-selling author Rev. James Martin, S.J., editor-at-large at America Magazine.

The event will begin with a conversation between Fr. Martin and Kathleen Sprows Cummings, director of the Global Catholic Research Initiative and John A. O'Brien Collegiate Professor of American Studies and History.

Following their discussion, Fr. Martin will read excerpts from his newest book, Work in Progress: Confessions of a busboy, dishwasher, caddy, usher, factory worker, bank teller, corporate tool, and priest. Copies of the book will be available for sale immediately following the event.

This event is free, but ticketed. Tickets will be available on a first-come, first-served basis at the DeBartolo Performing Arts Center Ticket Office one hour prior. Attendees must show a Notre Dame, St. Mary's College, or Holy Cross College ID upon entry.
